Woman Hit and Killed in Early Morning Collision

(September 10, 2025) Detectives are investigating a fatal collision where a woman was struck by an SUV during the early morning hours in north Phoenix

At about 5:30 a.m., on September 10, 2025, officers were called to a collision involving a pedestrian and an SUV near 15000 North Cave Creek Road. As officers arrived at the scene, they found an adult female suffering from critical injuries. The woman was provided emergency care by The Phoenix Fire Department; tragically, she was not able to overcome her injuries and died on scene.

Detectives responded to the collision and learned the woman was attempting to cross Cave Creek Road when she was hit. The adult male driver stayed on scene and showed no indications of intoxication.
