Phoenix Police Launch New Tool for Crime Victims Automated Case Updates and Better Service

(August 6, 2024): Today at 8:30 this morning, the Phoenix Police Department launched its new customer service tool to better serve victims of crime.

This new service, developed by SPIDR Tech, is designed to keep those who call for police services informed and provide real-time updates to victims of crimes. When someone calls 911 or the Department's non-emergency number from a cellphone, they will now receive a text message confirming their call and a report number once the call has been completed by the officer.

This new technology will also provide an opportunity for the caller to complete a survey regarding the service they received. The survey will be mobile-friendly received as a link on their phone, allowing the caller to complete the survey at their convenience.

In addition to the text messaging service, the Department has revamped a victim-centered webpage, with a portal for victims to look up the status of their case and sign up for alerts to receive updates on the investigation. Victims who prefer traditional methods of communication through phone calls and emails will still have that option available.

Please email me at Philip.Krynsky@Phoenix.gov if you would like to arrange an in-person interview regarding this topic.
