One-year Anniversary of Ofc. Tyler Moldovan Shooting

Tomorrow, December 14, 2022, marks the one-year anniversary of the horrific shooting of Phoenix Police Officer Tyler Moldovan. The rookie officer was shot eight times in the line of duty during a search for a suspect in a central Phoenix apartment complex. The doctors deemed his injuries not survivable.

Tyler and his wife Chelsea had different plans. Many of you have followed Tyler's unbelievable story of survival and recovery. Many of you have asked to speak to Tyler and his wife, who has steadfastly stayed by his side and never gave up hope that Tyler would pull through.

The couple is overwhelmed at the outpouring of support this past year from their family and friends, neighbors, the greater community, the police department, their faith community and the media. While they were not up for a news conference or granting multiple one-on-one interviews, they did allow a crew from the Phoenix Police Department Public Affairs Bureau to do an extensive interview and take B-roll.

The Public Affairs Bureau will make the full, multi-camera interview available to the media tomorrow at about 10 a.m. along with b-roll taken at their home and during Tyler's physical therapy.

You are welcome to edit this as you see fit. They have approved us sharing this material.

We will re-send this advisory tomorrow around 10 a.m. with a Google drive link that will allow you to download the interviews and the B-roll. We just wanted to give you the heads-up for planning purposes.
